Kevin Woodham

Kevin started working in the industry for the National Trust based at Cliveden. After nearly 11 years, he decided to 'branch' out and ran his own business. Kevin joined Bartlett Tree Experts in 2004 as a climber and it was his keen interest in tree pest and diseases that saw him gain more knowledge and understanding of tree biology and he soon became the office Plant Health Care Specialist.

Kevin works with his clients to provide a high level of care offering Bartlett's unique research-based approach to tree and shrub care together with pest and disease management.

Together with Bartlett colleagues, Kevin has worked alongside the Head Arboretum at Kew Gardens to eradicate the Oak Processionary Moth.

Outside of work Kevin is a keen motorcyclist and is mostly found tinkering with engines with either his beloved motorbike or the odd chainsaw or hedge cutter.
