Meet Your Bartlett Arborist Representative

Scott Suffron

When Scott was very young in rural Nova Scotia and New Brunswick, he grew up hiking, camping and exploring the wilderness. He developed a life-long love of nature and connection to the outdoors.

After studying biology, forestry and ecology at the University of New Brunswick, Scott developed a solid foundation of tree knowledge. He began a 10-year career in the silviculture industry on the west coast of Canada where he supervised tree planting camps throughout British Columbia.

In 2005, Scott worked in the tree care industry in Vancouver and gained more experience and knowledge about the native plants.

He decided to join Bartlett Tree Experts to continue his progress with the leader in the field. Scott is an ISA Certified Arborist and a Certified Tree Risk Assessor. His role as an Arborist enables him to assist clients with managing their urban forests. Scott's professionalism provides clients with superior customer experiences.
